

Cellular Stress Signaling and Tissue Repair in Regenerative Niches

Elena Marquez, Priya Natarajan, Jonas Feld

Biology | February 12, 2026

Journal of Experimental Biology Systems

DOI: 10.48211/insight.bio.2026.1042

Abstract

This paper examines how transient stress signaling influences repair outcomes in regenerative tissue niches. Moderate activation sharpens stem-cell coordination, while prolonged signaling degrades lineage fidelity and slows recovery.

Prepared for The Insight research repository demo.