

Household Inflation Expectations and Consumption Adjustment U

Daniel Kwon, Amira Solberg, Lina Petrov

Economics | January 21, 2026

Review of Applied Macro Analysis

DOI: 10.48211/insight.econ.2026.2014

Abstract

Combining survey data with high-frequency spending records, this study finds that expectation persistence shapes household consumption as strongly as the level of expected inflation itself.

Prepared for The Insight research repository demo.